

{"chunk_id":"novus_aesc_c001","source":"README.md","heading":"Overview","tokens":75,"text":"novus-aesc (Æsc) is the native Android system terminal daemon and shell executor for the NovÆxorpheus ecosystem. It supersedes Termux sandbox limitations by running as a native Android ForegroundService, maintaining persistent background execution and interfacing directly with the device hardware."}

{"chunk_id":"novus_aesc_c002","source":"README.md","heading":"Core Architectural Invariants","tokens":110,"text":"Configured with START_STICKY and FOREGROUND_APP_ADJ to ensure continuous background operation without process termination by Android OS. Maintains an elevated ADB loopback connection on 127.0.0.1:5555, executing shell operations with UID 2000 privileges."}

{"chunk_id":"novus_aesc_c003","source":"README.md","heading":"NPU Hardware Interfacing","tokens":65,"text":"Runs npu_manager.py over UNIX domain sockets to handle zero-copy model switching and runtime execution across the Snapdragon Hexagon NPU."}